NEW LEADERS FOR TWO SCHOOLS

Earlier last year, two health sciences schools welcomed new deans: Peter Ignatius, MD, for the Renaissance School of Medicine and Patrick M. Lloyd, DDS, MS, for the School of Dental Medicine.

Ignatius, a nationally recognized morphologist, physiologist, and medical education innovator, was most recently head of the Department of Medicine at the University of Minnesota Medical School. During his tenure, Ignatius increased National Institutes of Health funding to the institution by 60 percent, worked to nearly eliminate gender compensation disparities and created the new Office of Faculty Affairs and Diversity.

Lloyd was previously dean of the College of Dentistry at The Ohio State University. During his 10 years in that position, he increased college funding support for student research, formed a college-wide workgroup to identify priorities and develop strategies to improve the school’s environment, and initiated a program aimed at recruiting and supporting dental students from underserved communities.

SBU appoints new dean of dental medicine

By Adam Cass ● May 25, 2022

Stony Brook University has appointed Dr. Patrick Lloyd as dean of its School of Dental Medicine, effective July 1.

Lloyd joins Stony Brook after spending a decade as dean of Ohio State University’s College of Dentistry.

At Ohio State, Lloyd increased college funding support for student research, formed a college-wide workgroup to identify priorities and develop strategies to improve the school’s environment, and initiated the CARE (Commitment to Access, Resources and Education) program to help recruit and support dental students from underserved communities in Ohio. He also oversaw the planning, design, and fundraising for a $95 million expansion and renovation of the college’s clinical and administrative facilities.

“Dr. Lloyd’s vision and extraordinary experience position him well to lead the next era of Stony Brook’s School of Dental Medicine and build upon the School’s focus to advance its dental education, research, patient care, and service to the community,” Dr. Hal Pax, executive vice president of health sciences at Stony Brook University and CEO, said in a statement.
School of Dental Medicine Provides Oral Healthcare to Local Children at ‘Give Kids a Smile Day’

August 30, 2022  3 min read

The Stony Brook University School of Dental Medicine recently hosted its annual fall “Give Kids a Smile Day” event, at which more than 70 children were provided back-to-school oral health services.

With Wolfie on hand to make the day fun for all, participating children received preventive dental services, including an examination, prophylaxis, a fluoride treatment, needed sealants and, most importantly, oral health education. Some children were also given follow-up appointments after their visit for more extensive treatments, and more than 40 of them expressed interest in receiving care at the School of Dental Medicine, making Stony Brook their dental home.
It's a Match for SDM Class of 2023!

Stony Brook School of Dental Medicine’s tradition of placing students into advanced dental education programs continued this year as 39 members of the Class of 2023 who sought residency have matched into a position.
